

TARIFFS

A Look at Trump's Tariffs So Far

The Trump administration has imposed, paused, or floated tariffs on various countries and products. Keep track of them here.

52

14

Play

Save

President Trump holds a signed executive order on reciprocal tariffs in the Rose Garden at the White House on April 2, 2025. Saul Loeb/AFP via Getty Images

By Epoch Times Staff | May 18, 2025 Updated: May 18, 2025

President Donald Trump has launched a sweeping tariff agenda since taking office, kickstarting an effort to reset trade relations with most countries.

The tariffs, he says, are meant to get the country back on an even playing field with trading partners that have for years put up barriers on goods from the United States.

His 90-day pause on reciprocal tariffs in April has led to trade negotiations with scores of nations.

Separately, the United States and China entered a trade truce in May, agreeing to slash tariffs on each other for 90 days while talks continue.

Below is an overview of the status of the president's tariff initiatives.

Sign up for the Epoch Weekly Debrief newsletter. Get an easy, digestible roundup of 2 to 3 of the most important stories from the past week. Sign up with 1-click >>

More Premium Reports

See More

How Hackers Can Control Your Phone Without You Clicking on a Link

What to Know About the Problems in Newark's Airspace

Greenland's Mineral Wealth Could Pave Way to Independent Future

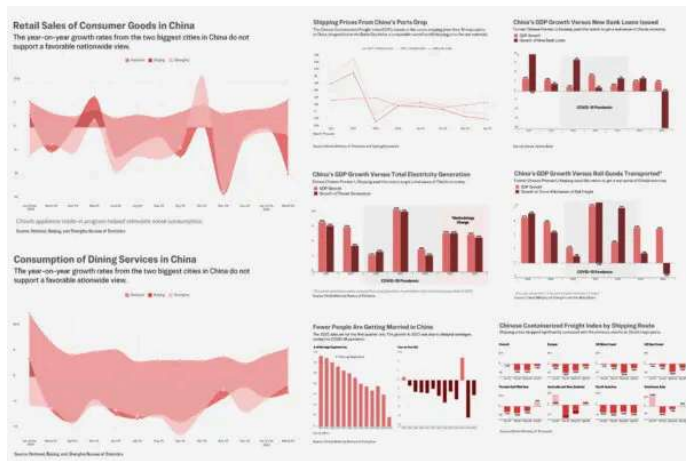

Even With Trump's Orders, an Uncertain Future for Pennsylvania's Coal Miners

How Legal Immigration Is Keeping Farms Afloat

Parents of Autistic Children Weigh In on RFK Jr.'s Plan to Find the Cause

A Look at China's Economy in 8 Charts

How Falun Gong Spread and Transformed China in the '90s

Trump Admin Eyes Semiconductor Tariffs—Here's What to Know

Hollywood Unions Cautiously Welcome Trump's Movie Tariff Proposal

